

Al Rashed is Al Arabiya General Manager

With over 25 years experience in the media, Al Rashed joined MBC Group in 2003 and became General Manager of Al Arabiya in April of 2004.

He began his career in print in 1983 when he worked as a foreign correspondent out of Washington for al Jazeera – a Saudi newspaper.

He then moved to London to take on the job of deputy editor-in-chief of Al Majalla, a current affairs magazine.

He was soon named its editor-in-chief and ran it for 10 years until he moved to Al Sharq Al Awsat newspaper (one of the most prominent newspapers in the Arab world) in 1998 to take on the position of editor-in-chief.

He still writes a daily column for the newspaper.

He has interviewed many world leaders, including President George Bush, President Bill Clinton, President Hosni Mubarak of Egypt, President Bashar Al-Assad of Syria and King Mohammed the sixth of Morocco

He is the author of several essays and a producer of numerous documentaries.

Al Rashed graduated from American University in Washington with a degree in Visual Media.